Reminder: Reminder for handling unsolicited phone calls

You should never give out any type of company information, including names of employees to someone you do not know -- even if the person claims to be an employee of RJRT or RJRN.

Be especially careful to adhere to RJR's standard practice of identifying the caller, where they work and the purpose of the requested information before responding or directing the call. Information requested by suppliers or contract partners should also be cleared by the appropriate manager before being released.

Employees should always keep in mind that, because of documents produced for government agencies and for lawsuits, the names of some staff members may be available to a variety of people outside our organization. Therefore, it is important that we all remember:

- Company policy requires that all media inquiries be referred to our public relations department. Any comments made to reporters or producers can be used in a news story, and it is the responsibility of public relations to decide whether it is in the company's best interest to have an employee talk with media representatives.

- Attorneys must go through appropriate court supervised, legal channels to acquire information or documents from Reynolds Tobacco. We are aware that some of the attorneys who have filed suits against the industry in the past year have been reprimanded in other lawsuits for seeking information outside legal channels. Never rule out the possibility that a caller -- regardless of who he or she claims to be -- may be working for an attorney.

When dealing with unsolicited telephone calls, if someone refuses to identify him/herself, if a person's affiliation is questionable, or if a request seems to be outside normal company channels:

- Ask first if the caller is with the media. If yes, transfer to public relations at 741-7693.
- Ask if the caller is a consumer or student. If yes, transfer to consumer relations at 741-6435.
- If the caller says he or she is not with the media and not a consumer or student, transfer the call to the legal department at 741-5902.
- On telephone questionnaires or survey requests, the caller should be asked to submit the survey in writing to Public Relations, P.O. Box 2959, Winston-Salem, NC 27102.

Maintaining RJR’s corporate security is vital given the external environment faced by the tobacco industry. It is very important that each of us do our part to maintain this security on a daily basis.
